

INSTITUTE FOR RESEARCH ON POVERTY RESEARCHERS AT APPAM POLICY RESEARCH CONFERENCE

October 30, 2017

Madison—A multidisciplinary group of Institute for Research on Poverty (IRP) researchers and researchers-in-training from the University of Wisconsin–Madison and IRP off-campus Affiliates from across the nation will present their work on a wide range of poverty policy-related issues at the nation’s foremost national policy analysis conference November 2–4, 2017, in Chicago, IL.

The scholars will be participating in the 2017 Association for Public Policy Analysis and Management \(APPAM\) Annual Fall Research Conference, whose theme is “Measurement Matters: Better Data for Better Decisions,” which is a key objective of IRP’s work in the areas of U.S. poverty and inequality.

The two lists below comprise the APPAM panels, presentations, symposia, and posters organized, chaired, discussed, and/or presented by (1) IRP Affiliates, Postdoctoral Fellows (National Poverty Fellows), and Graduate Research Fellows at the University of Wisconsin–Madison and (2) off-campus IRP Affiliates, in alphabetical order by researcher (please click on titles to verify date and location in the conference program and for further details). Names in bold indicate presenter.
